Focus on Strengths and Achievements Balance constructive feedback with positive reinforcement. Example: "Liam shows great enthusiasm during storytime and is eager to participate in group activities." Be Honest Yet Encouraging While honesty is paramount, framing feedback positively encourages growth. Example: "Sofia is still developing her fine motor skills but shows persistence when practicing cutting and coloring." Include Actionable Suggestions Provide parents with ideas on how to support their child's development. Example: "Encourage Emily to practice counting objects at home to strengthen her number sense."
